A: Do you have a specific exception type you want to return in the case of an error? If not, try using the generic error handling method: using (var reader = new StreamReader("id.json")) { jsonData = JsonConvert.DeserializeObject(reader.ReadToEnd()); } } A: If you want to handle the exception as a generic type T (with a specific type parameter for that case), you should do so in your catch block: try { jsonData = JsonConvert.DeserializeObject(ld_Servicio.Text.Trim()); } catch (Exception ex) { var dataType = ex.GetType(); MessageBox.Show("Error deserializing: " + dataType.Name); } } Otherwise, use the generic error handling method: try { jsonData = JsonConvert.DeserializeObject(ld_Servicio.Text.Trim()); } catch (JsonSerializationException ex) { MessageBox.Show("Error deserializing: " + ex.Message); } } Note that for the try-catch construct, you need to indicate the type parameter for T when throwing the exception (this is how catch(Exception ex) works). You don't need to do this for the error handling block using a catch (j

To be able to achieve world peace and permanent harmony in the world, the first step is understanding human nature. ISLAMABAD, Pakistan — Thousands of people took to the streets in Pakistan's capital, Islamabad, on Sunday to demonstrate against the execution of a Christian couple for blasphemy. Police had earlier used tear gas to disperse a crowd of about 1,000 supporters of Asia Bibi, a Pakistani Christian woman whose conviction for blasphemy has sparked mass protests in the country. Bibi, a mother of four, was sentenced to hang for allegedly insulting Prophet Muhammad in 2009 during an argument. Her execution is scheduled for Oct. 31 after Pakistan's Supreme Court upheld the death sentence. President Asif Ali Zardari on Saturday described the execution of Bibi and her husband, Ashiq Masih, as "a dark day for Pakistan and a setback for religious harmony." Zardari also announced a commission of inquiry, to be headed by a retired Supreme Court justice, to investigate the affair. A lawyer for Bibi said that the trial was marred by gross errors and that the conviction "should be set aside." Prime Minister Nawaz Sharif issued a statement Saturday condemning Bibi's execution and vowing to fight it through the "federal and provincial governments and all political and legal means." Zardari, a minority-party politician, has played a delicate balancing act between Sharif and a powerful Islamic clergy that wields enormous influence over the federal government. In recent weeks, he has cracked down on Muslim extremists, including a Taliban faction that stormed an Islamabad shrine and killed 134 people last year. In pushing legislation to grant suspects due process before trials and sentences, Zardari has alienated conservative Islamists and Pakistan's powerful military. Pakistan's Supreme Court, which is dominated by religious scholars, upheld the July conviction in a 4-3 ruling. The verdict was based on confessions that Bibi and her husband made during a three-hour interrogation, which they were denied during a three-day trial. The woman has denied the charges. The Pakistani government says there is no such crime under Islamic law. Bibi's lawyer, Nadeem Anthony, said the interrogation was marred by "gross errors," including the
