We are looking forward to hearing your thoughts and experiences! Thank you! Carpe FulgurQ:

Asymptotic behaviour of $\sum_{n=1}^N \frac{1}{n^2+4}$ $\sum_{n=1}^N \frac{1}{n^2+4}$ I have found the first two terms of the series, and I would like to know whether this is the asymptotic behaviour of the whole series. A: Let $S_N = \sum_{n=1}^N \frac{1}{n^2+4}$. Then, by partial fraction decomposition, we have that $S_N = \frac{1}{4} \left(\frac{1}{2} - \frac{1}{2n+2} \right) + \frac{1}{4} \left(\frac{1}{2} - \frac{1}{2n-2} \right)$

What's new in Astrea: Six-Sided Oracles:

(Highlands Brewing Company, Portland, OR) - Bas One (6.5% ABV) - When this beer was first released, I know that I was immediately drawn to its clean, refreshing quality. To me, that's one of the keys to really expressing the booziness of a big-ale without having any of that murky, funky, weirdness hanging around. In contrast with so much of the stiff, one-dimensional hop beers that are so focused on churning out that sweet, grapefruity beer flavors with just a hint of bitterness, this beer is full-bodied - sweet, citrusy, fruity, almost ciderlike - but also almost completely stripped of nasty tasting, unevolved hop flavors. Rather than being that combination of the sticky sweetness and sharp bitterness that comes with so many new-phenol hopped beers, Bas One is a more gentle approach, focused mainly on the fruity "natural sweetness" of the hops. When I shared this with my friend, botanist extraordinaire Bob, he took it upon himself to poll the masses on it, asking them to rank their agreement/disagreement with the assertion "it doesn't taste like a bad science project of some college kid's botany lab that went horribly wrong". In all places that I looked, there was virtually a unanimous agreement that this is a refreshing good, and a beer to be especially enjoyed while sitting in the yard with a barbecue. While yes, this is a beer that could certainly be enjoyed in the colder months too, at that time of year particularly, the heat from the grilled-onion will really be a part of that incredibly bombastic malt that comes from the dark malt.

Bold American Pumpkin Ale - Omission (17% ABV, Porter) - The way that Omission has been continually coming out with brand new recipes that surpasses the last, has been shockingly consistent. I've been drinking this beer over and over again, since it was first introduced, and it's become something that's very special to me. It's the ineffably perfect example of an Imperial Brown that's perfectly dry and very fresh. It has such a smooth, silky consistency that it can, for some, be the perfect beer for the Thanksgiving table, offering yet another, great way to practically use up the floured fresh-baked pie. For

Daniël Ernst is a truly original VR creation which challenges the current state of VR storytelling by combining ground-breaking technology with explosive cinematic aesthetics to create a whole new way to tell a story. This original futuristic VR concept game has been created by the two of today's hottest Dutch indie game developers Lood de Bruin and Thorsten Wiedermann. The game is set in a near future where humanity has colonized Mars. The VR headset is the best companion you can have to explore this world and interact with its inhabitants. Interact with Orbs - These tiny orbs appear all over the globe and they will help you to follow your journey, access restricted areas and ask questions of the people of Mars. Kicked out of your home - Your home is now inhabited by Martians. How will you interact with them? Navigate your way through Mars - Literally. Visit an interactive map from inside your head and make your way through the underground Martian cities. Experience a first person plot - The story is told through a first-person narrative. You play as Earth's first settlers in their ship on their way to Mars. Feel the world - No more fixed camera positions! Experience the 360 degrees surroundings, inside your head. You are the VR explorer. Immersive sound and music - Lood de Bruin partnered up with composer Paul VanEeckhoutere to develop a soundscape of traditional and modern music perfectly suited for this type of narrative. Full performances - Experience the voice of Daniël Ernst and the Martian dialogue from Brazilian actress Mia D'Amato. Virtual Reality for you - A VR version of the game will be released in Q1 2019. Buy Daniël Ernst today! About The Developer: Lood de Bruin and Thorsten Wiedermann both started making games in 2013, following a passion to create interesting and immersive games. They have been developing games together since then. Thorsten is the CEO of Future Strong, a one-man-show game studio for projects based in the Netherlands. Future Strong is known for their innovative game design, beautiful artwork, and attention to detail. One of their first games, 'Bodymama', was selected for the Dutch national festival. Lood, originally from the Netherlands and now living in London, started his career in game design at a AAA studio in the Netherlands. Afterwards he decided to start his own studio, Lood de Bruin
