The city will pursue construction of a linear park along Milwaukee Avenue between Sauganash Avenue and Western Avenue and on the Hiawatha LRT right-of-way between Lawrence and Kimball avenues under a proposed agreement with the Regional Transportation Authority, a developer said. A 24-acre tract along Milwaukee Avenue near the intersection of Lawrence Avenue has been offered to the RTA as the basis for the park, said CIM Group senior vice president Bill Holford. The park could be constructed in conjunction with the Sauganash-to-Kimball section of the Hiawatha LRT, he said. The offer of the land is in accordance with a recently released environmental impact statement for the project, Holford said. The city and CIM have previously reached an agreement to develop the 64-acre parcel as the "Sauganash Station" and move forward on the project. The agreement includes creation of a mixed-use development with 442 residential units, 128,000 square feet of commercial space and 250,000 square feet of open space, along with public parkland, a day care center and a commercial building. The 606-space CTA Blue Line terminal is planned for a parcel directly south of the project. The CTA has plans for a 532-space commuter parking garage at Lawrence Avenue and Western Avenue. The RTA project was first announced in 2011, but construction was delayed while the agency reviewed plans for the LRT. The agency plans to begin construction of the LRT later this year. The agency estimates that the project would cost $160 million and create 1,250 construction jobs. "As we work through finalizing the budget and preparing a conceptual design, we've received requests for additional land within the project area," said RTA spokeswoman Jean Feurt said in a statement. "We've worked with the community to identify land that can accommodate the requests, and a purchase agreement has been executed between CIM and the RTA. The purchase agreement with the city allows for the sale of the land at fair market value to ensure a level playing field for the project." A learning self-organizing map for fMRI paradigm-based image classification. The aim of the present study is to examine the feasibility of using a learning self-organizing map (LESOM) for discriminating task-specific cerebral activities. Functional magnetic resonance imaging (fMRI) data were preprocessed with the statistical parametric mapping (SPM) software, and a LESOM with 29 output neurons was optimized on the basis of a data subset of interest to generate prototypes associated with stimuli. The LESOM was then applied to a second data subset, and the classification was tested. Results demonstrated that the LESOM could accurately classify the functional patterns elicited by two different tasks. The decoding analysis also showed that a large number of the LESOM output units could be associated with the represented classes. The efficiency of the LESOM was verified through detailed comparison with a support vector machine
