Happy Birthday to our favorite sci-fi/fantasy writer (or should that be fictional movie-maker) J K Rowling! Harry Potter has sold over 700 million books around the world and been translated into many languages. And aside from being a #1 New York Times Bestseller, it has also won a couple of awards, including the 2005 British Book Award for Children's books. With that said, it wouldn't be wrong to say that J.K Rowling has made a name for herself in the world of literature and in recent times, she has made quite a name for herself with her Harry Potter series. The book that got her into the limelight was Harry Potter and the Philosopher's Stone, which was first published in 1997. And if this is not enough to tell you that it is the first book in the Harry Potter series, then the epilogue also came in 1997. And while we are at it, J.K Rowling has a few of her other popular works too: Along Came A Spider (2002) is a children's story that is also being adapted into a film. The special edition of the book features the movie poster and media. In 2009, "The Casual Vacancy" was published and received positive reviews and became a New York Times Bestseller, selling around 50,000 copies in its first week. The "Fantastic Beasts and Where to Find Them" Series of books that were first published in 2001 are also a fan favorite. For someone who enjoys reading and writing, I feel like J.K. Rowling has certainly succeeded and I am sure that we'll see more of her in the future. Happy Birthday to our favorite sci-fi/fantasy writer (or should that be fictional movie-maker) J K Rowling!
