the best way to avoid this is to set your privacy settings to the maximum. there are three privacy settings on facebook that you need to consider. these settings are friends, messages, and fined tolerance. friends allows you to see your friend's information, including their status updates. messages allows you to see what your friend has posted on their wall. fined tolerance is the maximum amount of spam your account will tolerate. once this amount is reached, facebook will automatically filter out the spam and ask you to manually review it before facebook removes it. having a facebook account is a good thing. there are however many different people on facebook and you can not go through all your friend's messages. a much easier way to do this is to use the facebook graph api to get a list of messages you are interested in. this way, you don't have to go through all the messages and can just view the ones you want to read. you can also have a customized feed showing only the facebook messages you want to see. what if i don't want to use facebook on my web page if you don't want to use facebook on your web page, then you can use facebook pixel to track the number of visitors to your website. the facebook pixel is a small pixel on your website that facebook will put inside your website. once a user clicks on your link, the facebook pixel will set a cookie on the visitor's browser, the cookie will then be shared with facebook. facebook will use the information from this cookie to understand what is happening on your website. you may not have any friends on facebook. on your friends list, you can only see the facebook ids of people who have added you as a friend. if you want to add a friend, you need to know their facebook id and then ask them to add you as a friend. you can always add friends manually on facebook.

Do not allow the following website to access your Facebook password. <http://www.facebook.com/hacking> . This site allows users to look up their username and password and view the records of all Facebook accounts associated with that user name. The hacker's role is to enter your Facebook username and then find the email address associated with that username. This is the email address that you input on the fake website for banking account verification. From that email address, the hacker will send you a private message requesting that you click an attachment that requests your Facebook Password. Fake Websites are used to get users to log in so a hacker can access your personal account and steal all of your money/IDs. They target highly important data and compromise the social security numbers of the users. These hackers take information from the site they are accessing and use that information in different ways. They sell that information to unscrupulous businesses, identity thieves, and so forth. Nearly all Internet users have been confronted with this at some point in their Internet life. Hackers hack into our computers and infect them with malicious software known as viruses. Viruses can take control of a victim's computers by making them perform certain actions that the hackers want to. Computer networks are an easy target for hackers. They are able to gain control of your computers because they can lure your computer into a computer virus. Hackers are experts at these things and often work for large groups. The net was created for sharing, buying and selling information like music, movies, photos, and video. Copyright holders enforce these laws when people use the net to infringe their copyright. The biggest risk is the ftp (File Transfer Protocol). Theft occurs when your ftp server is compromised by a hacker and data is accessed or changed without your knowledge or permission. 5ec8ef588b
