The 2017 Release Candidate for TestComplete Web Edition 12.2 is now available for download on the link below. Important information regarding upcoming features and known issues with this release are included in the information page at <https://www.smartbear.com/tc/1222rc.html>. In April 2015, SmartBear Software introduced the Client + Server side Application Development Framework (CASADF). CASADF was designed to transform traditional client-server software development into a more agile and effective development workflow. TestComplete 12.2, the latest version of the TestComplete family of products, builds upon these strengths, expanding test management and test automation features. To gain insight into the content of the current version and upcoming features, you can read the 12.2 Release Candidate information page. This information gives you a general idea of what to expect from this release. To give you a preview of what's new, we've included a few highlights below. There are new elements that make test automation easier and more effective. First, there is a new support for web test automation in the Client Web Edition. Next, there is a fully customizable HTML interface for Mobile. Both of these new elements simplify the test automation process. In addition, there are several improvements in the data analysis and reporting capabilities of TestComplete for automating the end-to-end testing. These improvements help to increase overall productivity. In addition, TestComplete 12.2 has a completely redesigned XML data analyzer. Both automation and report users will benefit from the new data analyzer's intuitive presentation.
