.Q: How to pass a javascript array of strings to a php script via ajax I have a javascript function which allows me to fill a dropdown-box with a list of items, I then want to pass this list of items to a php script via ajax so that I can store the array in my database. However I am getting this error: undefined index: name Here is my javascript function: function fillAll() { var r = new Array(); $.ajax({ type: "GET", url: "User_Profile/list.php", dataType: 'json', data: {}, success: function (data) { r = data; } }); $("#frmProfile").submit(); } And here is the javascript array in my array.php file: $_GET['name'], 'Email' => $_GET['email'], 'Role' => $_GET['role'])); $handle = fopen("User_Profile/list.php", "a"); fwrite($handle, "$data"); fclose($handle); ?> What is the mistake in my code? Why is my javascript function not able to pass the array of strings to my php script? A: you dont need $.ajax because there's not request with it - only with POST/GET - and you only need to pass data type json so your function should be like this: function fillAll() { var r = new Array(); $.ajax({
